Part I - Literary Works

Section	Title	Author	Year/s Published	Thematic Significance
The First Rebellion Satan as Literary Shockwave	The Tragical History of Doctor Faustus	Christopher Marlowe	1604	A foundational "deal with the Devil" tragedy that sets the template for Faustian rebellion, ambition, and ruin.
	Lucifer	Joost van den Vondel	1654	A major early epic that frames Lucifer's fall as political revolt and cosmic resistance, not just "evil."
	Paradise Lost	John Milton	1667	The definitive literary Satan - grand, defiant, and persuasive - and the core text behind later Romantic reimaginings.
	Faust (Parts I and II)	Johann Wolfgang von Goethe	1808-1832	The centerpiece of Faust literature, blending temptation, transcendence, and modern moral ambiguity into one mythic arc.
Romantic Fire The Rebel as Moral Imaginationst	The Complete Poetry & Prose of William Blake	William Blake	1783-1821	Blake's visionary fire turns rebellion and spiritual freedom into sacred art, making him essential to the Neo-Romantic backbone.
	The Complete Poetical Works of Byron	Lord Byron	1807-1824	Byron's dark charisma and defiant individualism practically invent the modern aesthetic of the heroic rebel.
	The Complete Poems of Percy Bysshe Shelley	Percy Bysshe Shelley	1810-1822	Shelley refines rebellion into a moral philosophy, pushing Romantic revolt toward compassion and liberation.
	Forefathers' Eve	Adam Mickiewicz	1823-1832	A national-gothic masterpiece where spiritual struggle becomes political resistance and myth becomes identity.
	The Demon and Other Poems	Mikhail Lermontov	1839	A haunting Romantic demon as lonely outsider, trapped between yearning, pride, and exile.
	Eloa, or the Sister of the Angels	Alfred de Vigny	1824	Recasts Satan as a tragic, compassionate figure, adding moral empathy and emotional depth to the Romantic rebel tradition.
	Flowers of Evil	Charles Baudelaire	1857	A landmark of decadent beauty that turns sin, grief, and desire into sacred aesthetic experience.
	Hymn to Satan	Giosuè Carducci	1863	A provocative poetic manifesto that reclaims Satan as a symbol of reason, progress, and defiance against clerical authority, framing rebellion as intellectual liberation rather than moral corruption.
	Poems and Ballads and Atalanta in Calydon (First Issue)	Algernon Charles Swinburne	1865-1866	Swinburne's scandalous lyricism attacks moral authority with pure rhythm, sensuality, and blasphemous elegance.
Gothic and Infernal Modernity Cruelty, Hypocrisy, and the Outsider	The Devil in Love	Jacques Cazotte	1772	Adds an early, subversive portrayal of the Devil that destabilizes fear-based morality by making temptation intimate rather than monstrous.
	The Monk	Matthew Gregory Lewis	1796	A Gothic shock classic where repression, lust, and religious authority collide into full-blown nightmare fuel.
	Frankenstein	Mary Shelley	1818	A Gothic tragedy linking the abandoned creature to Milton's Satan, exploring compassion, moral responsibility, and the dignity of the outsider.
	Melmoth the Wanderer	Charles Maturin	1820	A wandering curse tale that explores damnation as endurance, despair, and philosophical horror.
	The Dirges of Maldoror	Comte de Lautréamont	1868-1869	Pure literary black-magic energy - surreal, violent, and anti-moral in a way that shaped modern darkness.
	God and The End of Satan	Victor Hugo	1886-1891	Hugo turns cosmic rebellion into a redemption-scale epic, blending Satanic myth with moral revolution.
	The Black Riders	Stephen Crane	1895	Minimalist, brutal little parables that hit like prophetic punches - bleak, strange, and spiritually adversarial.
	The Sorrows of Satan	Marie Corelli	1895	A wildly entertaining moral inversion where Satan feels more human than the people who condemn him.
	The Revolt of the Angels	Anatole France	1914	A sharp, witty rebellion myth that treats heaven like a flawed bureaucracy and revolt like a rational response.
	The Master and Margarita	Mikhail Bulgakov	1940	A razor-sharp satirical novel where Satan exposes hypocrisy, cowardice, and moral rot under authoritarian power, turning laughter, imagination, and compassion into acts of rebellion.
	The Blind Owl	Sadegh Hedayat	1936-1937	A fever-dream descent into obsession, despair, and alienation that feels like Gothic dread filtered through pure existential horror.
Secular Defiance Ethics, Politics, and Anti-Authority Without the Supernatural	The Plain Speaker: Opinions on Books, Men, and Things	William Hazlitt	1826	Unsparing, psychologically sharp essays that expose ego, resentment, and power with a Romantic intensity that still feels brutally contemporary.
	The Bible of Liberty	Alphonse Louis Constant	1841	A proto-occult manifesto of spiritual revolt and liberation that bridges Romantic dissent with esoteric imagination.
	Consuelo	George Sand	1842-1843	A passionate, idealistic artist's journey through art, love, and freedom, with that full-blooded Romantic intensity and moral defiance.
	System of Economical Contradictions	P.J. Proudhon	1846	A foundational critique of power and exploitation that feeds the intellectual DNA of rebellion running through the whole project.
	The Antichrist	Friedrich Nietzsche	1895	A scorched-earth philosophical polemic that dismantles Christian "slave morality" and reclaims the adversary as the ultimate symbol of sovereign, life-affirming autonomy.
